Associate (AWCF) Examination

Changes to the Written Paper

The WCF Examinations Executive Group has introduced a change to the AWCF written paper which takes effect for and from the Examinations in April 2012.

Previously the paper consisted of 8 questions in three sections and candidates were required to answer a total of 5 questions with at least one from each section. This meant having to read 8 questions and select three which candidates did NOT answer whilst ensuring that they answered at least one from each section.

This has been simplified in that there will now be only six questions on the question paper, two in each section, from which the candidate still has to answer five. Candidates therefore only have to discard one question, which should allow more time for their answers of the five questions.

Details are contained in the Syllabus which is online at www.wcf.org.uk.

You should note that the Past Papers being issued are of the old 8 question format. The questions will remain of a similar style and level.
